Very first steps

In the following slide, there is a small list of steps to compete in order to start working on the GitHub (improved web integrated version of the previous Git).

- subscribe here <https://github.com>;
- once you have created an account send me an email with your account nickname, so that I can invite you as a collaborator;
- join as a developer of repository "Limadou".

Now you are a collaborator of the "Limadou" project and you can produce new versions of the data analysis Package and make it available for usage or further developments by the other collaborators.

NB: the all code is completely open source, so it can be read by other GitHub user, but it is editable just by the collaborators.
